

Global Trade and Commerce Studies (GTCS)

(Interdisciplinary Minor)

Coordinator, J. Kline Harrison, Associate Provost for International Affairs and Kemper Professor of Business

The minor in Global Trade and Commerce Studies consists of a total of fifteen hours. Candidates for the minor will be required to take INS 260 (Seminar in Global Trade and Commerce) and twelve additional hours in global trade and commerce studies, which must include a study abroad experience for credit. No more than six of the fifteen hours for the minor may be taken in a single discipline. The following list contains courses within Wake Forest University that qualify as a global trade and commerce studies course. Courses taken during the study abroad experience which may qualify as a GTCS course also will be reviewed and approved by the director of international studies.

REQUIRED COURSE:

INS 260. Seminar in Global Trade and Commerce. (3h) Provides foundational knowledge in global trade and commerce. Focuses on understanding the global environment and the variety of issues associated with global trade and commerce.
