

To receive federal student aid, a student must have a high school diploma or a General Education Development (GED) certificate, meet other state standards that are approved by the U.S. Department of Education, or complete a high school education in a home school setting that is treated as a home school or private school under state law.

Our records currently do not show the nature of your secondary education. Please provide evidence that you have completed your secondary education in a high school setting, or have satisfied the home-school completion requirements of the state where you were home-schooled, by marking one or more of the choices below and by describing in the space below the nature of your secondary education. You may also wish to attach a copy of other appropriate documentation.

- (1) I have a high school diploma. Name and address of high school: _____

- (2) I have a General Education Development (GED) certificate with a passing grade.
- (3) I have a state high school proficiency certificate with a passing grade.
- (4) I was home-schooled and have a secondary school completion credential for home school provided under state law.
- (5) I was home-schooled, but my state does not require a home-schooled student to obtain the credential described in option (4); furthermore, I have completed a secondary school education in a home school setting that is not considered to be in violation of the state's truancy laws.

I certify that the information reported on this form is correct and complete to the best of my knowledge.
