

WAKE FOREST
UNIVERSITY

Distinguished Bioethics Faculty Position

Wake Forest University seeks a distinguished scholar in bioethics to fill a newly-created position in its liberal arts and sciences College, at the rank of associate or full professor (with tenure). The successful candidate will help lead a newly-established interdisciplinary Bioethics Center to national prominence. Exceptionally qualified candidates may also be considered for a chair appointment.

Candidates may come from any of the liberal arts, humanities, or sciences. The primary appointment will be in a humanities or science department relevant to the candidate's discipline within Wake Forest College. This new faculty member will join other bioethics faculty currently in the College and in the Schools of Law and Medicine. Teaching responsibilities will include undergraduate courses in the home department and graduate courses in the Master of Arts in Bioethics program.

Wake Forest University is a private, coeducational institution dedicated to academic excellence in liberal arts, graduate and professional education. Founded in 1834, the University is ranked among the top thirty national universities. With 4,300 undergraduates and 2,200 graduate and professional students, the student-faculty ration is 10:1. Wake Forest is a collegiate university offering a vibrant intellectual community with a rich cultural life, an impressive array of facilities and an active athletics community. From its founding, the university adopted the motto "pro humanitate" which is exemplified by a deep institutional commitment to public service and engagement with the world.
