

2009 Honorary Carswell Lecture

Presented by the

WAKE FOREST
UNIVERSITY

Department of Philosophy

Linda Zagzebski

Kingfisher College Chair of the Philosophy of Religion and Ethics
University of Oklahoma

“Epistemic Self-Trust and Belief in God”

“In this paper I argue that the natural desire for truth makes epistemic self-trust a requirement, and consistent epistemic self-trust commits us to epistemic trust in others. One of the consequences of this argument is that trust in the self supports the traditional argument for the existence of God from common consent (consensus gentium argument).”

Thursday April 16, 2009 4:30 p.m.
DeTamble Auditorium Tribble Hall

Open to the public and free admission