CONFERENCE PARTICIPATION

Since joining Wake Forest in 1985 have attended 193 academic conferences, symposia, workshops, etc. in which I have made a presentation – paper, discussant, etc. The venue of 37 of these events has been outside the US – 12 in Pakistan; 7 in Canada; 5 in England; 6 in Bangladesh; 2 in India; and one each in Egypt, Turkey, France, Spain, and Ireland. Many of the foregoing presentations have been given at professional association meetings including: Wisconsin South Asia Conference; American Political Science Association; Canadian Political Science Association; International Political Science Association; Berkeley South Asian Conference; Association for Asian Studies; Middle East Studies Association; among others. Also, many such presentations have been made at thematic conferences held at university locations including Harvard, Stanford, Berkeley, Oxford, SOAS, Pennsylvania, Columbia, Duke, UNC-CH; Toronto; Calgary; Wisconsin, Lahore University of Management Sciences, Jawaharlal Nehru University; Dhaka University, Quaid-i-Azam University and others. Also I have given presentations at numerous think tanks and policy forums including the Council on Foreign Relations; Asia Society; Woodrow Wilson International Center; Middle East Institute; National Intelligence Council, Center for Strategic and International Studies; Asia-Pacific Security Studies Center; and several other US State Department and other US government venues.

CONFERENCE ORGANIZING

Since joining Wake Forest have been the primary organizer of five major international conferences each related to Pakistan Studies. "Conference on Political Development and Democracy in Pakistan" (Columbia University – 1992); "Conference on Politics of Social Change in Pakistan" (Columbia University – 1994); "Law and Society in Pakistan" (Myrtle Beach, SC 1995); "The State of Pakistan Studies" (Smithsonian Institution – 1996); "Pakistan at Fifty" (Graylyn Conference Center – 1997). In 2004, was also the co-organizer of the "Bangladesh: Democracy, Governance and Resources Conference" (Center for Strategic and International Studies, Washington DC). During 2006-2008 I was the co-organizer of several workshops held in various university and governmental venues in Bangladesh related to the "Building Administrative Capacities in Bangladeshi Institutes of Higher Education" project.

INVITED LECTURES

Since joining Wake Forest in 1985 I have been invited to present 74 external guest lectures (outside of Forsyth County, NC). Forty-three of these have been made outside the U.S., most of the latter were presented in Pakistan, Bangladesh, or India. Also I have given an additional 56 invited guest lectures within Forsyth County since 1985.

EXTERNAL GRANT ADMINISTRATION

In connection with my role as the Director of the American Institute of Pakistan Studies (1987-2001), I served as the “project director” and/or “principal investigator” and was the primary author for 30 United State Government and Government of Pakistan grants. During those years AIPS received grants on an annual basis from the Government of Pakistan, Ministry of Education; and with a couple of lapses annual grants from the USG, State Department/ECA. Also, AIPS received a three-year USG, Department of Education grant (2000-03). The total amount awarded to AIPS during my tenure from all grants was $2,724,050. This money was used primarily to fund research in Pakistan by pre- and post-doctoral American scholars (75 research grants were awarded during my time as Director); to arrange the visits of Pakistani scholars, government officials, and public figures; and to organize and administer Pakistan-related academic conferences in the United States.

Also, in my role as Secretary of the American Institute of Bangladesh Studies (1999-2005) I helped to write relevant grant proposals (ECA/CAORC/State Department) and administer its programs in Bangladesh working with the CDRB in Dhaka. Also, I was co-principal investigator for the US State Department/ECA sponsored “Building Administrative Capacity in Bangladeshi Institutes of Higher Education”, 2005-08.
