

TENURE TRACK ASSISTANT PROFESSOR POSITION

WAKE FOREST UNIVERSITY'S Department of Sociology invites applications for a tenure-track assistant professor position to begin fall 2011. We seek scholars with a commitment to outstanding teaching and an active research program who are able to contribute to our core curriculum including introductory courses, social theory, social statistics, and social research methods – with special consideration given to candidates with interests in political sociology and/or social movements. Applicants must have a Ph.D. in sociology in hand by August 2011.

To apply, please submit: (1) a letter of application that includes a description of teaching experience, interests, and practices, as well as current and projected research projects; (2) a curriculum vitae; (3) evidence of excellence in teaching; (4) a sample of recent published work; and (5) three letters of reference. Applications are being accepted electronically only. Please send all application materials other than letters of reference as e-mail attachments in Adobe PDF format to wfu.soc.tenuretrack@gmail.com using the applicant's name as the subject heading. Direct letters of reference and questions to Chair, Recruitment Committee, Department of Sociology, 1834 Wake Forest Road, Wake Forest University, Winston-Salem, NC 27109 (phone: 336/758-5495). Review of applications will begin September 15, 2010. Applicants are strongly encouraged to submit materials prior to that date; however, applications will continue to be accepted until the position is filled.

Wake Forest University welcomes and encourages diversity and seeks applications from women and minorities. It seeks to recruit and retain a diverse workforce to maintain the excellence of the University, and to offer students richly varied disciplines, perspectives, and ways of knowing and learning.

Located in Winston-Salem, North Carolina, Wake Forest University is a private, coeducational institution with a student-faculty ratio of 10:1. Ranking among the top thirty national universities, it offers a vibrant intellectual community with a rich cultural life, an impressive array of facilities and an active athletics community. For facts about the University go to <http://www.wfu.edu/visitors/quickfacts.html>. For information about the Sociology Department go to <http://www.wfu.edu/sociology/>. For facts about Winston-Salem go to <http://www.cityofws.org/Home/Discoverwinston-Salem/Articles/Cityinformation>.

RENEWABLE THREE-YEAR TEACHING PROFESSIONAL POSITION

WAKE FOREST UNIVERSITY'S Department of Sociology invites applications for a renewable three-year non-tenure track teaching professional position to begin fall 2011. The Instructor rank is the initial step in this career path, with opportunity for promotion and advancement to Lecturer and Senior Lecturer, as warranted by professional performance. We seek scholars with a commitment to outstanding teaching who can contribute to both our introductory and advanced curriculum. Applicants must have a Ph.D. in sociology in hand by August 2011.

To apply, please submit: (1) a letter of application that includes a description of teaching experience, interests, and practices, as well as current and projected research projects; (2) a curriculum vitae; (3) evidence of excellence in teaching; (4) a sample of recent published work; and (5) three letters of reference. Applications are being accepted electronically only. Please send all application materials other than letters of reference as e-mail attachments in Adobe PDF format to wfu.soc.lecturer@gmail.com using the applicant's name as the subject heading. Direct letters of reference and questions to Chair, Recruitment Committee, Department of Sociology, 1834 Wake Forest Road, Wake Forest University, Winston-Salem, NC 27109 (phone: 336/758-5495). Review of applications will begin December 15, 2011. Applicants are strongly encouraged to submit applications prior to that date, however, applications will continue to be accepted until the position is filled.

Wake Forest University welcomes and encourages diversity and seeks applications from women and minorities. It seeks to recruit and retain a diverse workforce to maintain the excellence of the University, and to offer students richly varied disciplines, perspectives, and ways of knowing and learning.

Located in Winston-Salem, North Carolina, Wake Forest University is a private, coeducational institution with a student-faculty ratio of 10-1. Ranking among the top thirty national universities, it offers a vibrant intellectual community with a rich cultural life, an impressive array of facilities and an active athletics community. For facts about the University go to <http://www.wfu.edu/visitors/quickfacts.html>. For information about the Sociology Department go to <http://www.wfu.edu/sociology/>. For facts about Winston-Salem, go to <http://www.cityofws.org/Home/Discoverwinston-Salem/Articles/Cityinformation>.